Hello Workhorse family members. Summer is almost over and school is around the corner. The workhorses continue proving themselves on a daily basis. During this time I want to emphasize that Operation Security (OPSEC) is of the utmost importance. It is every family member's responsibility to remain vigilant in an effort to keep all from unnecessary harm. Operation Security can be loosely defined as preventing the enemy from obtaining unclassified but sensitive, information that could be compiled in an effort to harm our Marines and family. Items such as training exercise details, squadron capabilities, emergency procedures, detailed family member's job descriptions, and the like, should be kept as information only shared with those you know and trust.

My unit, personnel and Family Readiness Command Team is molding our Readiness Program to one that I feel will better serve our Marines/Sailors and especially their families. Mr. Dave Stockwell, our Family Readiness Officer (FRO), is always available to answer your questions and has an assistant in each of our companies. Thanks again for all you do.

Semper Fidelis
